FRANK YERGER LIKES LINDA VISTA AND CAMPLIFE

From letters received from the members of Battery B, it would look as though Uncle Sam had picked the finest place in the United States for them to spend their time in this country in training for the stern busi-ness of war. As described by Frank Yerger, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Yerger, 364 Third street, the men are to be congratulated on their good fortune. He says it is the most beautiful place he has ever seen. In a lengthy letter to his parents, he describes the trip and the things he saw after he arrived. The letter follows:

"Camp Kearny, Oct. 13, 1917. r Mother and All: Well, "Dear Mother and All: Well, mother, we got here at 6 o'clock this morning and it certainly is a most beautiful camp. I feel fine, and sure had a good trip. Had a lower berth and slept fine all the way. We stopped at Riverside for about an hour and they took us through the Mission inn, the swellest place I ever saw in my life. It was just like a museum, art gallery and cabaret. Along the way from Riverside we saw orange trees loaded with the fruit, and grapes and more grapes, and walnuts.

"The next stop was Los Angeles. That was last night. Stayed there our hours. Saw Los Angeles by automobile. Stopped in the Eagles' home. The home there is no better than the old home we used to have in Ogden. Played a couple of games of pool there and then decided to go to Venice. The wellest bathing place I have seen I sure wish you could have been with us. When our four hours were up, they were going to let us off for two or three hours more, but some of the boys took advantage of a good thing and got drunk, so they confined us to the cars. If it hadn't been for that, I would have taken in the Hippodrome. I do not know when we left Los Angeles, for it was night and I was asleep. When I woke up, we were four or five miles out of San Diego would like to have seen it, but they run trains and autos over there several times a day, so I can see it some

HERO OF WAR IN A LECTURE AT THE ORPHEUM

Information on the war, as seen by one who served in it, sacrificing his arm that freedom might reign, was given last evening at the Orpheum theater by Serg "Doc." Wells. It was the most interesting and absorbing lecture, accompanied with the most interesting and absorbing pictures, given to an Ogden audience since the war began. First hand knowledge of what he boys fighting under the stars and stripes may expect was given in all its details. Some of his experiences during the brief time he was in the service with the Canadian troops form an episode in the life of Serg. Wells that is almost unbelievable.

There are six reels of pictures. They how the departure of the Canadian forces from this side and their landing in England, where they are in training for a period before being sent to France and into the trenches. There they are shown in action against the enemy. Different scenes of the condi-tions under which the soldiers live are pictures is most enlightening.

Probably the best things in the pic ures representing the different force engaged, the progress of the more imof Serg. Wells. For an hour, the fight er held the audience enthralled with is descriptions of the many incidents he had experienced. Some of the things he told were such that all the horrors of war were brought home to his hearers. The scenes of death and bravery he has witnessed make a story of war that cannot be equalled. Through it all, he assumes no credit referring to his injuries and the loss of his arm as mere incidents. During the talk, there were to be seen tears in the eyes of many, especially when be told of the heroism of some of the
